Why Are These Notes Here?

The Scenario:

Joe Graphics submits his project PDF file to teach on time. He then realizes he didn't submit his source code, so he makes another teach submission with just the source code, adding it to the PDF he already submitted.

What happens?

He gets a big fat zero, because teach does not add new submissions to old submissions. It starts over from nothing. So, Joe Graphics's project teach folder just shows his source code. His PDF is not there.

The moral of the story: if you need to add more files to your teach submission, re-submit everything.
