<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Engaging, knowledgeable, and willing to help. Going over problems in class that we had struggles with really helped. Going over multiple examples as we learned new material also was really beneficial, as well as having us work in groups on problems in class.

- I needed much more detail, much more explanation. I don't necessarily fault the professor, though. Perhaps there was just too much information for him to cover in 10 weeks. Overall, it left me feeling pretty dissatisfied with the class. Again, it might not have been the professor's fault.
- My biggest thing was not having quite enough time to work on some of the homework assignments. Some of them had too many problems and for someone taking 20+ credits, that gets really difficult to fit that much homework into my schedule. I found myself mostly having to do most, if not all, of the homework assignments the night before or morning before it was due.

- The class was taught well and I really liked learning Mathematica, it is a tool I will undoubtedly use a lot in my career.
